

Good morning, dear professors. It's a great honor for me to sit here and introduce myself.

My name is Li Hao, and I come from Hong'an, Hubei, which is called China's First General County. I major in computer science at Nanjing University of Science and Technology and will graduate in this this coming June.

During my time at university, I have dedicated the first two and a half years to preparing for the postgraduate recommendations, therefore, I have achieved some accomplishments in various competitions, I have also actively participated in social activities and student organizations, which have enriched my university experience and enhanced my comprehensive ability.

As a computer science student, I have been increasingly fascinated by the rapid development of artificial intelligence. AI, especially those models such as deepseek and chatgpt, inspired me to join this area. This growing interest is one of the main reasons why I am applying to the Software College at Zhejiang University for my postgraduate studies.

In the future, I will dedicate myself to completing my graduation thesis and learn more professional knowledge. Through these efforts, I aim to lay a solid foundation for my future studies. I am looking forward to my graduate studies

That's all about my self introduction, thank you!
